ABSTRACT

The Lake Tahoe region of California and Nevada is an area that is under intensive federal, state, regional, and local study. This bibliography is a selective listing of 258 monographs and 58 maps which will assist scholars in obtaining a historical perspective of the region. The monographs are arranged alphabetically by author, followed by title, imprint, and date of publication. Maps are arranged alphabetically by region, followed by locale, scale, and size. Holdings symbols which refer to libraries in the Sierra Libraries Information Consortium, a bi-state cooperative of 25 California and Nevada academic, public, and special libraries are included for both types of materials. FOREWORD

Sierra Libraries Information Consortium:

The Sierra Libraries Information Consortium (SLIC) is a California-Nevada bi-state cooperative of 25 academic, public and special libraries. These libraries share much more than a stateline between their service areas. Because they serve common clientele information needs, experience isolation from major urban centers, and exhibit the traditional mountain range inhabitants' neighborly spirit, these librarians recognize the importance of sharing materials and expertise without regard to artificial political boundaries.

SLIC is an outgrowth of many informal meetings and initial bi-state contacts from one library to another. Many of the area's librarians had the chance to greet each other formally for the first time at a meeting in January, 1976, called by Mountain-Valley Library System's Resource Development Librarian, Maureen Trimm. This group decided to collectively address certain common problems, such as the need for bi-state reciprocal borrowing. Such cooperative programs led to the formation of the Consortium in January, 1977. Among the projects it currently sponsors is the Sierra-Tahoe Regional Resource Library, a special library, open to researchers and the general public, with an expanding collection of materials on the Lake Tahoe Basin.

Union Catalog of Tahoe Materials:

The Lake Tahoe Basin is the epicenter of SLIC, not only in a geographic sense, but also as the place where the libraries' cooperative efforts began. As the SLIC libraries share a need for information pertaining to Lake Tahoe, its environment, its people, its past and its future, these libraries have decided to share their materials on the subject. The first step is to find out what each library has, a project expressed as a union catalog.

A now defunct organization, the Lake Tahoe Area Research Coordination Board (RCB), prepared a document called the "Inventory of Research Activities in the Lake Tahoe Basin, 1845-1976". This inventory was used as the database for the SLIC union catalog. After the inventory listings were checked for bibliographic verification, and "cleaned up" for library main entry procedures, it was checked against the holdings of 18 SLIC member libraries. The expanded inventory with SLIC holding listings will be published in December, 1977, by the Nevada State Library.

As the Tahoe Inventory contained predominantly research related entries, it ignored many important non-research Tahoe materials. The SLIC librarians felt it was important to include these materials, mostly historical and travel guide items, in their union catalog. This bibliography is thus an addition to the Tahoe Inventory and a component of the SLIC union catalog.

WORKING DEFINITIONS

Lake Tahoe Basin: The traditional Tahoe Basin definition is the Lake itself and the watershed which contributes to it, an area of some 506 square miles, politically shared by two states and six counties. For purpose of inclusion in this listing, the Basin definition is expanded to include the Truckee-Donner Pass Area since the history of that area is related to the early discovery and passage through the Tahoe Basin.

History: The written history of the Tahoe Basin dates from its sighting by John C. Fremont in 1844. The next 20 years saw the exploration, the multiple crossings, the settling and the beginnings of the environmental rape of the area. It also saw the flourishing of written words about the beauties, wonders and cruelties of the area and its population. The RCB Inventory covers much of what has been written about the Lake in the past 20 years. This bibliography picks up the Lake's literature from its previous 100 plus years, although some overlapping is inevitable.

Pertaining to the Tahoe Basin: During much of its early history, Lake Tahoe was seen as a waystation to the gold fields and then as a satellite to the silver mines. While these two areas influenced the development of the Basin, materials about them are included only when they make specific reference to the Lake region. Further reference to these two eras can be found in: Margaret Rocq. California Local History: a Bibliography and union list of library holdings, Stanford U. Press, 1970, 1976 second edition; and in Stanley W. Paher. A Preliminary Nevada Bibliography, Nevada Publications, 1974.

Travel Guides: There are many publications which do not exactly discuss the history of the area, but which rather extol the marvels, natural curiosities and man-made comforts of the region. These "Chamber-of-Commerce" guides are included in this bibliography from their early railroad promotion ventures to the recent "fun-guides".

Natural History: The RCB Inventory lists many documents on the environment of the Lake and its Basin. It does not include some of the very general works about the region, its flora and fauna which are included in this bibliography. If a distinction between these listings is to be made, it would be by manner of degree, with the RCB Inventory including the more scientific research related items and this bibliography including the more general popular items, some of which contain only a few pages on the Lake region itself.

Maps: Many interesting maps of Lake Tahoe are bound in historical and research works about the area. Any student of the Lake's geography would best explore these works as well as the maps listed in this bibliography. The included listings are separate manuscripts, mainly from the collection of the Nevada Historical Society and the California State Library. The cataloging of these institutions was used for entry in the enclosed map listing. Other maps may be held at other SLIC libraries, as well as some general maps of Nevada and California which may be of interest to the region.

Periodicals: No attempt was made to list the vast number of magazine articles about Lake Tahoe, of both historical and current interest. This project will be left to the individual Tahoe student or to a later library project.

Holdings: The 25 SLIC libraries on the locations symbols list all checked a preliminary draft of this bibliography against their holdings. Many libraries, in particular the Nevada Historical Society, added additional entries for holdings they felt should be included in the list. It is possible that other libraries may also have copies of these volumes, as no second round of checking on the new listings was conducted. It is hoped that the next edition of the Tahoe Bibliography will pick up these additional holdings, as well as expand upon this admittedly limited list.

Compiler's Comments:

This is the section most satisfactory to an author of any work as it gives a chance to say appropriate thanks. Many, many hours of holdings checking have gone into this work by many SLIC librarians. This "in-kind" contribution to this Consortium publication is an indication of the cooperative spirit upon which SLIC was founded. Special thanks go to all of you who added additional listings to my preliminary compilation, especially to Lee Mortensen of the Nevada Historical Society. And of course, thanks to Nan Martinelli of Mountain-Valley Library System who typed, duplicated and collated the bibliography draft and final copies, one of those cheerfully undertaken "other duties as assigned".
